Gambetta, the eminent French statesman, is dead, and full particulars of his life will be found in another column.

It seems that one of the best things that can be said of Senator Davis, of Wisconsin, is that he began life as a railroad brakeman.

It is said that when General Grosvenor, of Ohio, was awarded five thousand dollars under the act of pension act, he refused the money, turning the entire amount into the treasury. Not many men would do this in the thousands of pension grabbing. The Philadelphia Times takes the liberty of saying that when the full story of Ohio is finally made up this will be recorded as the most wonderful case in her annals.

The Milwaukee Sentinel begins the new year in a new dress and with other improvements including enlargement of the paper. The hyped title of Republican-Sentinel has been dropped, and the name Sentinel retained, which is certainly an improvement. The paper has been enlarged by the addition of a column to each page, giving the Sentinel 56 columns in all. It has been otherwise improved, and beside that printed on a new press which cost more than ever before. It was always an excellent newspaper, but it is better now than it has heretofore been which is saying a great deal. The Sentinel is an honor to Milwaukee, and ought to be the pride of the state. Its measure of success is in proportion to its merit, it will reap financially and in influence, a rich harvest.

Milwaukee was visited by a fire the other day which cost nearly half a million dollars, but that visitation will hardly prove more than the visit of Her Most, the apostle of all that is mean in what the world call socialism. The Sentinel is not far from hitting the nail on the head when it says that "Her Most" gains a livelihood by speaking and writing against emperors, kings, aristocrats, capitalists, governments and wars. His plan is to have the emperors, kings, aristocrats and capitalists promptly murdered and the governments and laws abolished. He will find a pretty good field in Milwaukee, for there socialism seems to flourish. He will draw large audiences, and will be able to capitalise which builds the city and gives the working men homes and wages, abuse the government, insult the law, sneer at justice, and demand an equal distribution of money and property among the people. If the people of Milwaukee were wise in their day and generation, especially the Germans and the laboring classes, they would keep away from Her Most's meetings. His political lectures are outrageous in the extreme, but the Sentinel thinks he will not be able to raise a ripple of excitement there. "He will only cause the shedding of beer, and we have plenty of that to spare at the usual rates."

A View of the Park Side.
New York, Jan. 2.—Mayor Edson, in his inaugural message, states that the wharves are inadequate to the accommodation of commerce, the water supply is insufficient, the facilities for extinguishing fires are too limited, police and hospital accommodations are lacking, and the work of beautifying the city has been neglected. The net municipality is $96,141,918.

Chicago's Real Estate Business.
Chicago, Jan. 2.—The real estate business of Chicago covers $20,000,000 annually. The main feature of the market at present is the transfer of medium residence property. The event of the past week was the sale of fifty feet near the corner of La Salle and Adams streets for $120,000 for the purchaser refused to pay $40,000 only two years ago.

Mrs. Langtry in Chicago.
Chicago, Jan. 2.—Mrs. Langtry had for her opening night in Chicago an audience large in numbers, but rather undemonstrative as to appreciation. Wide differences of opinion were expressed as to her gift of beauty, but her grace and bearing were conceded by all. Taking rank as clever, charming, there is ample room for progress in a dramatic way.

A Remarkable Combination.
CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 2.—James M. McKelvey, the veteran actor, has signed a contract to play Hamlet on Friday night of the dramatic festival here next April, with McCullagh as the Ghost, Barrett as Laertes, and McKelvey as the first Ophelia. McKelvey is the first one to sign the contract to appear at that festival.

The Commercial Gazette.
CINCINNATI, Jan. 2.—It is announced that "The Commercial Gazette" will this week be issued from the office of the former, at the establishment of the latter will send "The Morning Journal" at one cent per copy. It is understood that "The Enquirer" is to act a penny paper, The Ledger.

A Watch-Meeting Disturbance.
READING, Pa., Jan. 2.—While watchlight services were being held in a church here, twenty young men backed a large amount against the building and fired it. The roof was crushed in and every pane of glass was shattered down upon the congregation. Several of the mischief makers are in jail.

The Excitement Was Too Much for Him.
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—Mr. Baldwin, highway commissioner of this city, felt content of reappointment by the city council, yesterday morning, but the excitement of the case brought on heart disease, which caused his death.

Michigan's Governor.
LANSING, Jan. 2.—J. M. Duggan, though Governor of Michigan, was sworn in by two Michigan judges. He reacted Lansing at once, and decided to ride to the capital in a carriage which had been sent to the city for his use.

A Good Attendance.
BOSTON, Jan. 2.—The Ford brothers fled from the city after their exciting adventure Saturday night.

THE SECOND.

Death an Unwelcome Caller at the President's New-Year Reception.

Sudden Demise of the Hawaiian Minister, One of the Guests.

The Brilliant Assemblage Dispersed and the Doors Promptly Closed.

Public Trusts Which the Deceased Had Held in America and the Sandwich Islands.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—At the conclusion of the reception to the diplomatic corps at the White House yesterday, Hon. Elihu Allen, minister from the Hawaiian islands, dropped dead of heart disease. Mr. Allen was the day, or day, of the diplomatic corps. He had conducted the presentation of the members of the corps to the president, and when the ceremony was concluded walked to the cloak-room and asked for his wraps. While waiting for a servant to bring them, he suddenly fell and instantly expired. He did not utter a word or groan. Dr. Norris, of the navy, was immediately summoned from among the visitors, and he pronounced death to have been instantaneous, and heart disease the cause. The president was receiving members of the Grand Army of the Republic when the sad news was conveyed to him, and orders were immediately given to close the White House doors. Thousands of citizens who were waiting their turn to pay their respects were unable to gain admittance, and some time elapsed before the cause for the ending of the reception was known. Mr. Allen was born at Salem, Mass., Jan. 23, 1804. He was a lawyer by profession, and served in the Maine legislature from 1830 to 1841, and in 1840. In 1848 he was elected a member of the Massachusetts legislature. In 1847 he moved to Boston and was elected a member of the Massachusetts legislature. In 1848, after the expiration of his term he was appointed consul to Honolulu, and soon after entered the employ of the Hawaiian government. In 1850 he was sent to the United States as envoy of that government. In 1857 he was made chancellor and chief justice of the Sandwich Islands, which position he held until 1862. Mr. Allen was sent to this country as the minister from the Hawaiian islands Jan. 14, 1870. Minister Allen was one of the diplomatic corps, an officer regarded by the corps as one of much importance, as the person who fills that position is the official mouthpiece of the corps. The death of Mr. Allen raises a question as to who shall be his successor. By custom it is decided by seniority, and the honor would fall upon Mr. Stephen Preston, the Hawaiian minister, if he were a resident of Washington, for his appointment dates back to February, 1872. But Mr. Preston resides in New York, and it is very desirable that the next of the corps should live in this city. The next in order is Aristarovich, the Russian minister, who was appointed in October, 1871, and since is reason to believe that the members of the diplomatic corps would prefer him, although official courtesy would cause them to refrain from indicating any wish in the matter. It is presumed that Mr. Preston would prefer to remain in New York, as he has done for years, making visits to this city only on important occasions, and that Aristarovich will succeed Mr. Allen. The prospect, however, has already been a topic of private gossip in diplomatic circles. The delicate question is complicated by the fact that the blood of the aristocrats is not exclusively Caucasian. Mr. Allen succeeded Mr. J. Thompson as the head of the diplomatic corps. Should Aristarovich succeed Mr. Allen the honor will have gone to the Hawaiian empire, as Aristarovich was the son of a Hawaiian prince. The Hawaiian islands were in the hands of the United States in 1898, and in his general appearance resembled a dandy from the rural districts of New England. Mr. Allen's death will be officially communicated to the corps by the president, and formal notice of it will be taken by the foreign committee of the two houses. The funeral will occur here, and will be attended, of course, by the whole diplomatic corps and representatives of the United States government. The death of the Hawaiian minister just at an end to what promised to be the largest and in many respects the most magnificent New Year reception ever held in the White House. The announcement that a distinguished person had died in the executive mansion, called to the recollection of many the gloomy scenes witnessed here in the summer of 1881. The reception yesterday was intended to be, and would have been, save for this unfortunate occurrence, the first really great reception in the White House since the death of Garfield. The mansion has been elegantly refitted and refurbished, and presents a more attractive appearance than it has for years. Last New Year's day the reception was a success. The gloom of the great tragedy hung over the city and penetrated the White House. All who entered there thought and talked of little else than the scenes and incidents connected with Garfield's assassination, suffering and death. Garfield was yet living, and the memory of Garfield was yet fresh. Yesterday the people went to the White House with light hearts, talking more of the future than the past. They went by hundreds and thousands. The crowd reached beyond the ground and lay down throughout the city. The White House was in all its new glory, and there hands with the president, who has the reputation of being one of the best dressed and best bred of all those who have occupied the presidential office. Their disappointment turned their thoughts into a gloomy channel. In all the years the White House has been occupied, it is said that only five persons have died within its walls. This is a good record, and is evidence that it is a healthy abode, notwithstanding all that has been said to the contrary. Among the notable cases of death in the diplomatic corps in this city in recent years was that of the French minister, Provost Parodi, whose tragic death by his own hand caused a great sensation. The death of Count Lodi, secretary of the Italian legation, about four years ago, was deeply regretted. He was a favorite in society and among the diplomats. The latest death prior to that of Mr. Allen was that of the Nicaraguan minister, Gen. Jerez.

Presidential Succession.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The bill pending in the senate to provide for the presidential succession in case of the disability of the president and vice president makes members of the cabinet in the line of succession. Under the present law the will of the people, as expressed in an election for president, might be entirely reversed. It is not an uncommon thing for the president of the senate and speaker of the house representing the political party in control of those bodies to be politically in opposition to the administration, and in such cases the death of the president and vice-president would place the control of the government in the hands of the party defeated at the polls. One point made against the bill is that the office of president is elective under the constitution, it is questionable if congress has the right to provide for the entire term of office. The greatest danger of a failure of the important legislation arises out of the conflicting views in congress as to the best method of providing for the succession. It is generally admitted that the present law is very defective, and that under its operation it is possible for a state of affairs bordering upon anarchy to arise.

FRANCE'S LOSS.
Excitement in Paris on Receipt of the Intelligence of Gambetta's Death.

The Streets and Boulevards Thronged With Crowds of Anxious People.

Authentic Account of the Last Hours of the Distinguished Statesman.

Comments of the English and German Press—The Funeral.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—The Republique Francaise publishes the following authentic account of the passing away of Gambetta: Early Sunday morning there was a noticeable change for the worse in Gambetta's condition. Nevertheless, he was allowed to cherish his illusions of ultimate recovery. At 9:30 he was able to have his bed changed without great difficulty, with the assistance of Dr. Etienne and some servants. The doctor, who up to this time had been very cautious, was unable longer to conceal his apprehensions. In the afternoon the disease increased in violence, and the patient's strength was visibly diminished. Some personal friends, warned in time, went to Ville d'Avray. Gambetta's father-in-law and sister were sent for; also some other friends who had not previously received intimation of Gambetta's approaching dissolution. The death agony began at 10 p. m. At 11 the patient lost consciousness and at 11:55, after uttering a few feeble moans, expired; it may be said without suffering and without suspecting death was so near. The conductors of the Republique Francaise have received telegrams of condolence from all parts of France. For nearly twenty hours before Gambetta became unconscious he complained that he was tormented with pain as if a ball of red-hot iron was inside him. He had recently become asthmatic, and it was therefore not permissible to ventilate his room properly. Several times during his illness he spoke to Bert, a member of the chamber of deputies, upon some matters weighing on his mind, but always briefly. Rano and Spuler were summoned to his bedside for the purpose of receiving a communication, but before proceeding death had begun when they arrived. It is believed the hospital tone of the bulletins issued during Gambetta's illness was due to the advice of Dr. Charvet, who did not wish the sick man, when the papers were called to the bedside, anything that might have a depressing effect. Gambetta died in a state of unconsciousness. The physicians who attended Gambetta state that death was due to pneumonia, caused by an erysipelas of the throat, forming in the back. A plaster cast of the face was taken yesterday morning. There will be an autopsy to-day. A full funeral will probably be given. The death of Gambetta has created an immense sensation here. Groups gathered on the boulevards by 10 o'clock yesterday morning discussing it. It is reported that President Grévy was deeply affected by the news. A stream of the most notable legitimists is passing through the death chamber. The face of the deceased has already become swollen, and is greatly changed. Yesterday afternoon a large number of copies of a newspaper, The Radical, containing a sensational article concerning Gambetta, was seized by a crowd on the boulevard. The papers were destroyed, and the police had great difficulty in restoring them from the excited populace. The opportunity partly appears stunned by the death of Gambetta. Gambetta left a written testament. He made a private will Saturday. The papers reporting his death are selling in over-sight and crowds are assembling to procure them. Telegrams were sent President Grévy and other authorities immediately after the death. The funeral will be conducted with purely civil rites. The family are anxious that the burial take place at Nice, but friends advise it be at Paris. In consequence of the high functions the deceased had filled, the authorities have thought it expedient to place seals on his papers. But few newspapers appeared yesterday, in consequence of it being a holiday. Most of the articles published so far reflect on the political effect of Gambetta's death, but confine themselves to deploring the loss of a statesman who did not disappear after Sedan.

HOW THE NEWS WAS RECEIVED.
ST. LOUIS, Jan. 2.—The death of Gambetta is the occasion of considerable comment in diplomatic circles here. Among the European diplomats particularly there is a feeling of grief, coupled with apprehensions of impending danger to the French republic. A member of the French legation is reported to have said to-day that Gambetta was the mainstay of the republic and that his death fills the future of France with uncertainty. The representatives of other nations than France have very little to say about Gambetta's death and its probable influence on European politics. If their expressions of opinion are correctly reported, they feel that a crisis is approaching in the affairs of France which Gambetta's death will hasten. They would not be surprised if a bold attempt at revolution were made by the enemies of popular government.

THE GERMANS ARE SATISFIED.
BERLIN, Jan. 2.—The German press, commenting on the death of Gambetta, considers that the event involves greater security to the peace of Europe.

What a Speaker Should Not Be. A. E. Winship in Youth's Companion.

A man who speaks too often will fall of the best self-control, will fail to retain the respect and admiration of his audience. So long as an audience wishes a man would speak longer or a second time he is a success; the moment they wish he would stop or would not rise he is a failure.

A public speaker should not talk about the subject on which he speaks in private conversation, either before or after the debate. If he do it before he will inevitably hint at things of which he afterwards speaks and will rob them of their freshness, or important charm; if he do it after the debate, it will throw a shadow over the impression made by the address.

—Mr. Harry Merrill commences the year 1893 in the city of Janesville. He presented him with a handsome ten-pound boy on New Year's eve, and the Merrill household is correspondingly happy.

—Mr. C. C. Keeler, of Beloit, was in the city a short time to-day, and had with him a few specimens of the work turned out by the Beloit machine iron works, in which he is largely interested. The specimens Mr. Keeler is showing, will compare favorably with any like work in this country, and there can be no doubt of the success of the new company.

—The St. Patrick's T. A. & B. society entertained their friends in a joyous manner at the Rifles' armory, last evening. The hall was crowded, and everyone was merry and happy; and the New Year's party of the T. When the procession reached Jackson street, there were one hundred and twenty-seven sleighs, carriages and barges in the line. The services at the church were also largely attended, and were conducted by Rev. Father Joeboe. At the conclusion of the services at the church, the casket was opened, that the friends of the deceased might take a last look at the remains, and hundreds filed through the aisles for that purpose. C. Stetson, proprietor of the Morgan house, at Milton Junction. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Davies, of the Congregational church, in the presence of a large number of the intimate friends of the parties, among whom were Mr. C. A. "HAPPY NEW YEAR."

Making and Receiving Calls in Janesville—Brilliant Reception.

Yesterday the day was largely given over to the very pleasant fashion of making New Year's calls. The day was bright, the air bracing and pure, and the sleighing good. A large number kept open house, and in several of the places where the ladies joined in receiving, the scene was brilliant, and music added to the pleasure of the reception.

From three o'clock in the afternoon until twelve at night, Cannon's hall was the scene of a large, pleasant and happy gathering. Forty-four ladies, under the leadership of Mrs. A. C. Kent, formed for the purpose of receiving calls at this hall. The doors were opened at three o'clock, and from that time until 8 p. m. there were over one hundred callers registered. The hall was beautifully decorated with mottoes, flags and evergreens in commemoration of the day. The greetings and congratulations were of the most cordial nature, and there was no lack of happiness for the entertainment of those who called. In the evening about one hundred and fifty ladies and gentlemen enjoyed a pleasant dancing party, music being furnished by the "Big Five Band."

But for the few gatherings in the city were happier than that at Cannon's hall. There were nineteen ladies who received at the residence of Mrs. Eugene Rich. This spacious and elegantly furnished home presented a scene of beauty from early afternoon till late at night. The parlors being thronged with callers. Aside from these fascinating surroundings, an orchestra was engaged whose music gave additional inspiration to the hours, and abundance of choice refreshments was the crowning feature of the richly decorated dining hall. The calls at this place numbered about ninety-five.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Donist was another place made especially attractive and brilliant by the coming of New Year's day. It was life and gayety during all the calling hours, and the superabundance of all the good things that tempt the appetite, loaded the beautifully decorated tables. There were close onto one hundred calls who were handsomely entertained at this place.

Mrs. Charles Atwood and several of her lady friends, received full as many callers as the other places. Her home presented that attractive appearance which did full honor to the day and to those who called with their New Year congratulations. No pains were spared to make the reception in keeping with the day.

The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Harris, with several of their intimate friends, received at their elegant home, on South Jackson street. The callers were numerous, who were entertained in a right royal manner.

Judge Prichard's home on South Main street, where Miss Abbie Prichard and others entertained callers, was made brilliant and mirthful. Decorations and refreshments were abundant, and the scene throughout the day was an honor to the home and exceedingly pleasant to those who left their cards.

The happy scenes witnessed and enjoyed at the places mentioned, were repeated at the residence of Dr. Clifton, don, where his daughter, Miss Millie and others received; and also at the home of Mrs. David Jeffris where there was a free flow of soul and hearty congratulations. The residence of Dr. J. H. Warren, where Mrs. Warren and eight or ten others gave a reception, was likewise in keeping with the day and its customs; and so also was the home of Mrs. B. Brand. Aside from these there were numerous calls made on families who did not give notice that they would receive calls.

Death of Mrs. Ansell Smith.

Mrs. Ansell Smith, step-mother of Mr. M. C. Smith, died on New Year's morning at five o'clock. About three weeks ago she took a violent cold, which settled upon her lungs, and from the effects of this she died. Mrs. Smith was a native of Peru, Massachusetts, and was 79 years old. She came to Janesville twenty-eight years ago, and had lived here ever since.

The funeral service was held at the late home of the deceased near the residence of Mr. M. C. Smith, at two o'clock this afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Davies, of the Congregational church officiating. The bearers were John J. R. Pease, J. B. Moon, Charles Skelly, N. Dearborn, E. H. Bennett, and H. A. Stone.

Mrs. Smith leaves two daughters—Mrs. Arthur Morton, of Orleans county, New York, and Mrs. J. M. Smith, of Rushford, Minnesota, both of whom attended the funeral.

COUNTY OFFICIALS.

The following is a list of the county officers elected last fall:

County Clerk Morgan begins his fourth term to-day, and does this under most flattering circumstances. He has made a splendid county clerk, because he has been constant in attending to the business of the county, and has done the business well.

Mr. Valentine enters upon his fifth term to-day, and there is not a man in Rock county who knows him but that feels like offering him his hearty congratulations, and wish him many more terms.

The officer who has served the longest is Mr. A. W. Baldwin, clerk of the circuit court. Fourteen years have gone by since he was first elected and he has been continuously in that office since that time and now begins his eighth term. The people of Rock county have applied the principles of practical civil service in his case, and in the four others who were re-elected with him. It has been a faithful servant and his frequent re-elections is an acknowledgment of that fact on the part of the people.

Mr. Willis Miles has occasion to feel flattered for the reason that he begins a longer term of service to-day than any county treasurer ever elected to that office in this county. He enters upon his fourth term to-day, with the consciousness that he has strictly attended to business, and in all things has been honest and efficient.

Mr. John W. Sale, as district attorney, has for a feather in his cap, the honor of being several years longer in that office than any other attorney in the county. The longest term heretofore has been six years, Captain Norcross having been elected five times, and during that time has done a great deal of hard work, and has done it well.

The retiring sheriff, Mr. H. L. Skavlem, yesterday turned over the sheriff's office and county jail to Sheriff Harper, and with it twenty-three prisoners, most of whom were tramps. Mr. L. O. Robinson retains his position as turnkey for the present. Register of Deeds C. L. Valentine has appointed Mr. C. E. Bowles as his deputy register; Clerk of the Court A. W. Baldwin reappointed Mr. Clarence L. Clark as his deputy, and County Clerk S. Morgan appointed Mr. Charles L. Valentine as deputy county clerk.

Mr. Sheriff H. L. Skavlem is the only officer retiring from official life in Rock county, the statutory law making that officer ineligible to two successive terms. During the occupancy of that office and his residence in this city Mr. Skavlem has made many warm, personal friends, who regret at his retirement. He has administered the affairs of his office in an able and thorough manner, and goes into private retirement with as clean and honorable a record as any of his predecessors.

A Good Sound Rest.

Is too often followed by a sour stomach symptoms of dyspepsia or indigestion. Every miserable dyspeptic in the land should know that he can be cured by a few bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters. Price $1.00.

Piano and Violin Lessons.

Miss Ella Smith, and C. E. Mitchell, are giving lessons upon the piano, violin and cello. Besides private lessons, their pupils have the advantage of playing together in duets, trios, quartets, without extra charge. This will enable them to read readily and correctly at sight. Several families send two or more children for lessons upon different instruments. This affords a wealthy and profitable recreation for the younger portion of the family, and makes home cheerful and pleasant for all.

Musical rooms at the residence of Dr. Mitchell, corner of West Milwaukee and Academy streets.

A Card of Thanks.

I desire to publicly thank my friends and neighbors for the kind assistance received and sympathy shown to my family during the recent sickness, death, and burial of my beloved wife. Especially I desire to thank Mr. J. W. Hogan for his many acts of kindness and assistance, and may the blessings of Heaven be with you all, is my weak prayer.
